

Gokhan Zengin is a full Professor of Biology at Selcuk University, He received his biologist diploma from University of Selcuk (2007) and his PhD degree (2015) in Selcuk University. His research activity is documented by more than 800 scientific peer-reviewed papers, and about the same number of conferences and communications to scientific and industrial meetings, 4 books and 10 book chapters. His main research interests have focused on chemical characterization, biological activities innovative and sustainable extraction and processing techniques of natural products.

Lecture: Enzyme inhibitors: foes and friends?