

Dr Ljilja Torović is a full professor at the Department of Pharmacy, Faculty of Medicine, University of Novi Sad (Serbia). Dr Torović gained a BSc, an MSc and a PhD at the University of Novi Sad (Faculty of Science, Department of Chemistry) and completed a specialisation in Sanitary chemistry at the Faculty of Pharmacy, University of Belgrade. She is a Center for Medical and Pharmaceutical Investigation and Quality Control (CEMPHIC) research team member. She was trained by world-leading authorities on food safety, including the European Commission (Better Training on Safer Food, BTSF), the German Federal Institute for Risk Assessment (BfR), the Federation of European Toxicologists & European Societies of Toxicology (EUROTOX) and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). Her main research field is risk and benefit assessment of foods in relation to human health, comprising a broad spectrum of food bioactives, toxicants and contaminants. She participated in 10 scientific projects which were funded by national and international institutions and published around 60 publications in peer-reviewed journals, with over 700 citations. She is a member of the Executive Council of the Serbian Nutrition Society.

Lecture: Assessment of Mycotoxin Associated Health Risk in People on Gluten Free Diet