

Ljiljana Kundakovic, PhD, is an expert in innovation management, technology transfer, and translation of research. During her career she participated in numerous international development projects (funded by The World Bank, UNDP, SECO, EC), advising on innovation policies, intellectual property, academia - industry collaborations and startup acceleration. Her experience includes management of multiple academic spinoffs in the US, work with public sector funding institutions (Serbian Innovation Fund) and academic research and teaching (MIT, Tufts University). She is currently responsible for science and technical cooperation at the Institute for Biological Research "Siniša Stanković", National Institute of the Republic of Serbia, University of Belgrade.

Title of lecture: Intellectual Property Management in Research Projects and Collaborations